B. of T. Speaker Says This District is Best in Canada

The annual meeting of the Wetaskiwin Board of Trade was held at the Grand Hotel on Monday evening, when reports of the year's activities were reviewed. The financial statement showed a small deficit on the year's operations, and the report of the executive committee referred to the abandonment of the Standing Crop Competition for want of funds, the outstanding success of the Boys' Scout Club, and the sending of two Wetaskiwin boys to the Royal Fair at Toronto; the Seed Fair in December was one of the best in the Province; the Pigeon Lake highway had been graded to standard and there was a big demand for the Wetaskiwin Publishing books.

The membership fee for 1932 was set at $1.00 and a big drive will take place for membership. It was decided to appeal for grants to the councils of the City of Wetaskiwin, M. D. Montgomery and M.D. Higson to assist in carrying on the activities for the ensuing year.

The officers for the year were then elected as follows:

President—W. H. Odell.
1st Vice-President—B. S. Wallis, of Brightview.

Chairmen of Committees:

Trades and Commerce—C. D. Emmet
Agriculture—C. Kerry
Finance—W. Bridgeman
Entertainment—C. W. Wallis
Publicity—Curt Smith
Roads—T. S. Steedman
Railways and Aviation—E. Roy

Recreation—H. E. Chalmers.

V. E. Thompson, in retiring from the President's chair, thanked all those who had so loyally co-operated with him in carrying out the duties of his office, and W. H. Odell, in his introductory remarks as president, solicited the hearty support of all the

CALGARY COMMUNIST HAS BEEN DEPORTED

Joseph Ferber, who was sentenced to ten months in Lethbridge Jail on a charge of being a member of, or assisting in the activities of, a subversive organization, was deported from Calgary, June 23 last, on his way back to England. He served less than a month in jail. He was deported under the conditions of an order made two years ago in Ontario for communist activities and left Canadian shores Dec. 23, six days after having been removed from Lethbridge Jail. It is believed that other prominent communist agitators may follow soon.

GAOL SENTENCE GIVEN FOR SELLING LIQUOR TO INDIANS

For selling intoxicating liquor to Treaty Indians of the Hobbema Indian Reservation, Joe Darnia of Wetaskiwin and Edmonton, was fined $300 and costs or four months hard labor in the Provincial Jail, by Police Magistrate R. M. Angus on Saturday last.

On a second charge of having in his possession illicit liquor (moonshine) he was fined a further $300 and costs and in default of payment three months in the Provincial Jail at hard labor, both sentences to run consecutively.

The Magistrate said that during the past month a lot of liquor had been finding its way to the Indians, and at the present time six Indians were languishing at the Fort as a penalty for refusing to tell from whom they got their drink, and he promised that the next person convicted of giving or selling liquor to Indians would find him more liberal with their time, and they may find their sentence doubled.

The cases were prosecuted by Constable R. N. Crouch, A.P.P., and Chief A. L. McIlhenny of the City Police. Darnia was escorted back and forth by Constable Crouch and will begin his seven months' term.

Emancipation of the Women of Russia Declared to Be a Failure

London, Jan. 6.—A writer in the News-Chronicle says that the twilight of the big family has undoubtedly set in. "A London school teacher told me that most of the pupils in the classes are 'only' children."

"In the new Russian system, women were declared, by the comrades, to have the same rights and obligations as men. Accordingly, scientific sex-tem of community feeding, public nurseries and maternity benefits landed her from the hampering domestic problems."

"Some of these women entered professions, medicine, the law, engineering. The great masses, however, found themselves in the trades and big industries. There were factory nurseries where the children were dropped in the morning, factory restaurants members, as it was only through such co-operation that the best work could be done during the coming year.

John Blue, secretary of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, was the principal speaker of the evening, and he was accompanied by W. W. McEln, and R. B. MacCosham, Vice-President of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, and M. D. Muttart and D. M. Ramsey representing the Junior Chamber, as well as other members of Edmonton. Mr. McEln and Mr. Ramsey in brief addresses conveyed the greetings of the Edmonton Club, and hoped that the Wetaskiwin Board would overcome many of the difficulties which were quite similar to those being encountered in Edmonton.

Mr. Blue in his very thoughtful address, spoke of the work being carried on by the Board of Trade in the different centres of Northern Alberta, all of which were promoting the best interests and welfare of their respective communities. There was not by any selflessness where such a spirit is manifest. He referred to the International Chamber of Commerce, where true democracy was exemplified as the affairs of the International are conducted by the shrewdest and brainiest business men in the country. This is in contrast to legislation enacted by governments when members work for political purposes rather than for the best interests of the country.

Mr. Blue advised the Board not to keep advertising of Wetaskiwin and district, as it is judiciously done, Wetaskiwin as well as Edmonton will get its share of the tourist traffic. Tourists spent $300,000,000 in Canada last year, and with the completion of the Jasper-Banff highway, no doubt hundreds of cars of tourists will pass through here weekly in the height of the season.

Ramsay MacDonald saved Great Britain by making sacrifices which did not hurt anybody, and he thought the citizens of Wetaskiwin district might have made a little sacrifice to help out the work of the Wetaskiwin Board of Trade, which is very important at this time. If the people have faith in the district of Wetaskiwin, they will co-operate with the work of the Board of Trade.

Mr. Blue then referred to the grain market of western Canada, and stated that the Edmonton and Wetaskiwin districts were 115 per cent better than the average over a ten-year period. This showed that this community was better off than any other part of Canada.

Speaking of the future, Mr. Blue thought there were difficult and dangerous times ahead. There were nine revolutions in the last two years and ten nations were unable to pay their debts. Fourteen countries abandoned the monetary standard and banks in the United States had failed by the thousands. In contrast of this, capital in Canada is liquid, and we will march out to prosperity as soon as good times come back. The big economists see great danger in the world at the present time, and the delegates to the regional and other conferences to be held in the near future must face the conditions very sanely, in the hope that some solution can be found to bring the world back to peace and prosperity.

BLIZZARD HITS LARGE AREA IN SASKATCHEWAN

Regina, Jan. 10.—Raging unchecked over wide stretches of prairie, small towns and cities, a blizzard held a wide section of the central portion of Saskatchewan in its grip to night.

An area which had Moose Jaw as its centre, Swift Current on its western side, Qu'Appelle on its eastern, Gravelbourg and Assiniboia on its south and Govan on its north, felt the force of the storm which attained blizzard proportions during the early evening at most points.

He recently reorganized the Winnipeg club and at Lethbridge reinstated 60 old members and gained 25 new members in two weeks.

DAIRY POOL MEMBERS WILL GET BONUS ON BUTTER FAT

Edmonton, Jan. 12.—With production for the 13 month period ending Oct. 31, 1931, totalling 1,998,000 pounds of butter, thus placing it as the forefront of creameries west of the Great Lakes, the Northern Alberta Dairy Pool has made application to the government for permission to distribute to its producer members one cent a pound bonus. This application has been granted and will entail an outlay of $13,615.

Under provisions of the Co-operative Guarantees Act such application must be made and such distribution carried out.

Distribution to each producer-member of one cent a pound butter fat in the form of bonus on the year's operations of the pool.

At the time of delivery, producers are paid at the prevailing rates and then, at the end of the year, any surplus is distributed on a basis of so much for each pound of butter fat sold to the pool.—Bulletin.

Weddings

BATEMAN-BUTZ

On Tuesday, January 12th, at high noon, the nuptials of Charles Bateman and Margaret Butz were duly solemnized at the United Church manse. The bride, who comes from Regina, was becomingly gowned in pale blue. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Butz, old-timers of southern Saskatchewan. The groom has established himself at Alder Plains, west of Pigeon Lake. Rev. A. R. Schrag officiated.

WETASKIWIN U.F.A. FARMERS SEEK A HALF HOLIDAY

When the United Farmers of Alberta annual convention is held at First Presbyterian church from Jan. 19-22, more than 150 resolutions will be presented to the meeting for consideration. A heavy grant already has been filed at U.F.A. headquarters at Calgary and as there is still time to file more, there is expectation of the total reaching 200.

Almost all phases of life touching upon agriculture are included in the subjects of the resolutions, from soldier and grants to "beaters" conventions, scholarships and the gasoline tax.

The Wetaskiwin Dominion constituency U.F.A. Association is presenting a resolution seeking a half holiday for farmers each week during the summer months.

The Lethbridge Association seeks an increase in the Supplementary Revenue Tax in preference to a provincial income tax. The Grande Prairie Association favors the giving of returned men prior rights in filling on homesteads and asks that returned men resident in Alberta five years be privileged to file on Alberta homesteads.—Bulletin.

REPORT NEW ZEALAND EXTENDS PREFERENCE TO CANADIAN EXPORTS

Ottawa, Jan. 11.—The new trade treaty between Canada and New Zealand, tentatively negotiated between the minister of trade and commerce of the two dominions, replaces the arrangement, which was renounced in 1931 by the former government here.

There had been treaty with Australia, and the offer of it was extended by the Canadian government to New Zealand. Under this arrangement, huge quantities of butter come into Canada from the other Dominion, and the normal preferential duty of a cent a pound. Much protest by the dairying interests was stimulated by parliamentary opposition. Hon. C. A. Dunning, finally cancelled the arrangement and made the duty four cents a pound. The present government has doubted that figure.

LIBRARY NOTES

Recent addition to the bookshelves of the public library and what they are about:

"Blanket of the Dark," by John Buchan. A new book by that ever popular author, in which he adds still another triumph to his list of achievements. His latest novel of high romance is set in Oxford, the west country, in the days of Henry VIII. While this is an historical novel it is as fresh in color and movement as though taking place under our eyes, with a plot of turns and twists, the actual denouement of which is in doubt until the last page. It has all the qualities that are dearest to a reader of romance.

"Belle-Mere" by Kathleen Morris. This is a novel of which the theme is jealous mother love, and as such it explodes the age old fallacy that mother love is always pure. For it was that quality, improperly directed, that all but destroyed the happiness of loyal Phil and Shelley his sensitive and high spirited bride.

Other new and interesting books are: "Prodigals of Monte Carlo," by Darryl Foon (per W. A. MacAllister), Dan's Daughter," by Joseph Lincoln; "The Small Batchelor," by P. G. Wodehouse; and for boys and girls "Sons of the Air," by T. C. Bridges; "Finding of Angela," by Alice M. Page; "Lefty," by Louis R. Horke; and "The Youngest Sister," by Besie Marchant.

Last Saturday proved a busy day for the library, 205 books being taken out during the afternoon and evening hours.

CONTRACT AWARDED FOR GRAVELLING LAKE HIGHWAY

Information has been given out by a government official that the Pigeon Lake highway, which was graded to standard last fall, will be gravelled before the spring thaw. The contract has been awarded to the Commercial Cartage Company, and the gravel will be procured from a pit north of Brightview. Work will commence in a few days and it is expected that the contract will be completed before April 1st. The operations will be carried out under the Unemployment Relief Scheme.

CHINESE DOCTOR IS FINED $500

Calgary, Jan. 9.—Charles Sing Lee, known throughout south Alberta as the "Chinese Doctor," was found guilty by Magistrate Sanders in police court on Saturday of having made a false statement in his income tax return, and was fined $500 and costs, or in default two months in prison.

Declaring that the first return of $7,300 when compared with the amended return for $22,000 showed such a wide discrepancy that it could not be any stretch of the imagination be considered a mistake or an incomplete statement, Magistrate Sanders said.

In submitting my report for 1931 I must wish you all a Happy New Year and congratulate you on the excellent health of the City during the past year.

Winnipeg, Jan. 8.—Lloyd George, a Scandinavian and German settlement of 25 years' standing, southeast of Edmonton, near Camrose, was awarded first prize in the Canadian National railways community progress competitions for communities of European origin in Alberta, according to information received here Friday from Dr. W. J. Black, director of colonization and agriculture for the railway company.

This is the second year's operation of these competitions.

The board of judges awarded second place to Montgomery, a Swedish and German municipality centring on Wetaskiwin, and third to Eagle Municipality, a Ukrainian and Rumanian settlement north-east of Edmonton. Liberty municipality, a German-Scandinavian-Ukrainian community near Leduc, was highly commended, and the Pines municipality, a Ukrainian settlement near Mundare, also Beaver Lake, a Ukrainian and Scandinavian settlement near Ryley, were commended on their efforts.

First, second and third awards received cash prizes of $1,000, $500, and $250 respectively, certificates of merit being given to Liberty, The Pines and Beaver Lake communities.

The competitions were conducted on the basis of a score card covering every phase of community development, stressing particularly education, agriculture and public health. They are held each year for five years and are confined to communities of European origin.

First prize district in Alberta, the municipality of Lloyd George, is one of the many progressive communities in the west and has been transformed from an area of scrub and timber into miles of fertile grain fields.

An interest in boys' and girls' club work has been notable in this district, and an effort has been made to improve school grounds.

In Manitoba and Saskatchewan first prizes were awarded to Rhineland, a Mennonite community south of Winnipeg and Laird, a Mennonite community in Saskatchewan. Sixty-three communities entered in the contests.

Some interesting comment was made Friday by Dr. R. C. Wallace, president of the University, and chairman of the Alberta board of judges, which included Mrs. B. M. Gunn of Lloydminster and Dr. W. H. Fairfield of Lethbridge.

"Lloyd George district had proven to be outstanding in its work in education, boys' and girls' club work and its attitude toward public health," said Dr. Wallace.

"Montgomery presented an unusually well developed farming district, outstanding in its livestock."

"Eagle an Ukrainian district, until recently considered distant from the railway, had shown great progress in agricultural work and in the development of two-roomed schools throughout the municipality."

"Liberty municipality near Leduc provided one of the best illustrations of real community co-operation between the various peoples that was experienced in any district," Edmonton Journal.

ENGLAND'S WONDER SHIP WILL CROSS ATLANTIC IN 92 HOURS WILL BE "QUEEN OF THE SEAS"

Across the Atlantic seaway with 200,000 horsepower driving her quadruple propellers, England's mysterious superliner, the Cunarder "534," will shatter every racing record in greyhound history.

A 73,000-ton colossus, 1,018 feet long, costing $30,000,000, the new ship now under construction on the River Clyde, at Glasgow, is aimed particularly at Germany's supremacy in the transatlantic passenger traffic. Temporarily known as "534," she will vie for the Atlantic blue ribbon, formerly held by other Cunarders, the "Mauretania," the "Laurentia," and the old "Britannia."

"No. 534 is designed for supremacy over anything afloat. In point of size alone, no present ship can compare with her. The 'Leviathan' with 53,850 tons, and the 'Majestic' with 56,621 tons, are outclassed. 'No. 534' will be eighty feet longer than the present blue-ribbon holder, the 'Europa,' seventeen feet broader, and will displace 23,000 more tons. Her main deck will be 650 feet long; the amidship dining room, between the second and third funnels, will be the largest room ever placed inside a ship; the promenade deck will stretch for 720 uninterrupted feet; her rudder, the largest ever built, weighs 150 tons, and her cubic capacity will embrace 7,300,000 cubic feet. Her commodious cabins will care for 5,000 passengers.

Such staggering dimensions and appointments would avail nothing in the present international rivalry for passengers were it not for the "534's" speed. Fifty years of study and thousands of tank experiments back this endeavor to wrest the blue ribbon from all possible contenders. The "534's" architects did not design their ship to be abreast of developments in the next five years, but in anticipation of major ship improvements for twenty years to come. Conservatively, it is estimated that "No. 534" will be a four-day greyhound, and that she will travel thirty-five knots as against the "534's" speed of thirty knots. Simple calculations bring out some startling possibilities in the "534." Her twelve turbines will drive this monster across the ocean at express-train speed. At 40.3 statute miles per hour, she will be in ninety hours, or six hours less than four days.

Speed has become more than a convenience to passengers; it is not a rule of economics with shipbuilders and operators. Thus, by increasing speed, the Cunard Line can operate a weekly express service with two superliners; heretofore three ships were necessary to maintain a weekly express service. The company is enabled thereby to carry more passengers per ship and to eliminate the tremendous overhead necessary to operate a third ship.

If the "534" could circumnavigate the globe without refueling, it is within the realm of possibility that she could swim around the earth's equator, 25,000 miles, in 25.9 days, or 820 hours. Thus she becomes a serious competitor to the airplane, for the "Graf Zeppelin," in her record-breaking world flight, covered 19,000 miles in twenty-one days and seven hours. Details of her fittings and appointments are still the secret of the "534's" owners, but they do not hesitate to say that it will cost $2,500,000 merely to decorate her. On both the port and starboard of the upper deck, fourteen motor lifeboats will be available in case of emergency. Ten miles of carpet will pave the staterooms and vestibules. Ten thousand electric fixtures will be necessary for the lighting and ventilation scheme. The power plant will generate enough current to supply the demands of a city of 100,000.

CAMROSE RESIDENT MAROONED ON LONELY ISLAND TWO YEARS

He didn't see a white face for two years—didn't hear a single English sentence, but lived alone with the Eskimos on lonely Victoria land. That's R. L. "Dad" Miller, proprietor of a hotel at Camrose, who was the first white man to spend a winter on lonely Victoria land, thousands of miles north of Edmonton.

Left marooned on Victoria land for two years through the sinking of the ill-fated Lady Kinsleroff off Point Barrow, "Dad" spent two years alone, as well as having spent many other years in the lonely north.

He is an expert upon Eskimo customs, and told of the domestic past of the northern natives when interviewed at his home in Camrose.

"How do the Eskimos make moccasins?" "Dad" Miller was asked. "Just a minute and I'll get a pair," he answered. He disappeared into his kitchen and he soon returned with a pair of moccasins. "I don't wear them often any more," he confessed, "because the wife doesn't like to have me putting on the place with caribou hair."

Sitting down he stretched out his feet and proceeded to explain the fine points of Eskimo cobbling. "A squaw up on Victoria land made these for me," he said, "and she has a number of pairs but these are the only ones left. You see they make the tops out of hair-seal skin, and trim them with braid and beads. Then for the bottoms, they take a chunk of walrus skin and start in carving. They chew the skin into a soft pulp, and they start in to shape them, making teeth-marks up around the front to curl the leather into shape."

"When they get the soles all shaped, then they sew the tops on with 'babble.' You can see they're pretty smart at it," he said, pointing out the microscopic stitches, "and these moccasins last well."

"You must have to dress in everything but the kitchen stove to keep warm in that climate," the interviewer commented.

"Last year we dress like the way the Eskimos do," he answered. "It gets pretty cold, but it doesn't seem so bad, even when it's around 50 below. If it's that cold, you just don't go out much, that's all."

"How are the snowhouses for warmth?" he was asked. "None too comfortable," was the response, "but you get used to anything." "All told, I've lived nearly three months in igloos. They aren't much for warmth. You have to wear all your clothes when you go out, and you have to be careful of how warm the fire is. The Eskimos don't take long to build them, though. They can put one up in a few hours. They build little ones wherever they spend the night, although sometimes they have really fancy ones in more or less permanent camps."

"When they want a house they just pick a nice, hard drift and go to it. They mark out a circle on the ground, and build down as well as up, using the chunks they take out of the floor to build the walls and roof. They don't make a really finished job unless they're going to spend some time in one spot, which isn't often. Whenever they go on a seal hunt they put up a small igloo right beside the seal hole."

"How do they catch seals?" Miller was queried.

"First they let their dogs smell out breathing holes," he answered, "and they make camp right beside the hole. Some of them use bows and arrows, but for the most part they have guns. They use a harpoon first though. They wait beside the seal hole until the seal sticks his nose out of the water, and then stab him with the spear. There is a detachable head on the spear that comes off in the seal. They have a line tied to the spearhead, and when they spear him they start the fun. It often takes a long time before they can drag him to the surface or get a shot at him."

"Do they live mostly on seal meat?" "No, mostly on fish and caribou. The caribou are their real bank account. If caribou are near, they are fat and happy. When the caribou move, they move. They depend mostly on caribou meat for food and for fur. The foxes follow the caribou, and if they don't get fox then they don't get anything to trade for flannel food and the knick-knacks we supply them in exchange for fur."

"I started from Fort Brabant in 1923 and the boat was supposed to visit me the next summer. When the ice broke up I was watching for her, but she didn't come. As August went by I knew that it was too late and that something must have happened here."

"I found out the summer after that the boat, the Lady Kinsleroff, had been trapped by ice off Point Barrow and had sunk. I knew something like that must have happened but I didn't hear the details until the Baychimo came for me the next year. That's how I came to spend two years without seeing a white face or hearing a word of English. I didn't worry much, though. I had lots of food and I was young then."

"I went 'outside' in the summer of 1925, and then came back for another two years. Then in 1929 I went to Herschel Island and up the Mackenzie river, and put up at a post I built on the Coppermine. But I got tired of the north, and now I'm 'outside' for good," he said—Edmonton Journal.

INCREASE OF 320,000 LBS. IN PAST YEAR

Alberta creamery butter production reached a new peak in 1931 with 22,650,000 lbs., which exceeds by 320,000 lbs. the previous high mark registered in 1924 when production totalled 22,330,000 lbs., according to figures released on Saturday by Dr. C. P. Marker, provincial dairy commissioner.

The 1931 production shows an increase of 28 per cent over 1930. Milk production, according to preliminary figures, which are not yet complete, increased by 15 per cent over 1930. Creameries in operation totalled 92.

The eight cheese factories in the province produced 1,000,000 lbs. of cheese. A decline in prices has brought the market value of the products to a figure lower than in some previous years.

The total value of dairy farm products is placed at $1,575,000, of which $4,530,000 is for creamery butter; $115,000 for cheese and the rest, $1,105,000 for other dairy products, such as milk, dairy butter, ice cream and other items.

Last year's total for all dairy farm products was $18,675,000. The average price for creamery butter for 1931 was estimated at 20 cents as against 28.04 cents for 1930. Returns for the cream grading service for 11 months of 1931 show that the percentage of special grade cream was 45 per cent, compared with 41 per cent in 1930, thus revealing a substantial increase in the quality of the product.

HUMOR OF THE PRESS

Louise Burke Duff, of Welland, Ontario, an exceptional editor who has been able to retire and devote his time to history and other things in the past, has been a personal interest recently on the above topic gave an address before the St. Mary's Rotary Club. As reported by the Journal-Argus, the first part of the address was devoted to unconscious humor found in the newspapers. Those unconscious slips which delight readers but cause editors to grow red in the face, received some attention. He referred to such slips as in the reporting of accidents, "as soon as Dr. Dutton had felt his pulse, he gave up all hope." "The ladies of St. Paul's church have a personal interest in the basement from 2 to 8 o'clock. An excerpt from a nearby paper, informed the public that 'it is proposed to use donations to purchase benches for the park, as the old ones are in a very dilapidated condition.' In another case a 'bottle of scotch' was a personal interest, the editor apologizing in the next issue for what should have read 'bottle of scotch'.

The speaker told of two rival editors who fought bitterly for years. One died and the other sought to make amends in the obituary. But before he could do so the item became mixed up with the report of a fire and read: "When the beautiful casket was lowered to its last resting place, lurid flames shot upward. This reminds us of the late Harry Dewar's slip when he wrote in the Harrison Review of a 'man's smoking remains' being removed from the old cemetery to a new one. Another case of mixing and reading matter was: 'Born to Mr. and Mrs. McShort, a son, with hot water attachments.' 'We want your eggs and we want them bad,' an advertiser informed the public, and on another occasion 'I am now in the position to hatch your eggs.' 'Mrs. Galloup has been taken to the hospital for an operation. Her gasoline station will be closed indefinitely.'

MANY TIRED BRAINS AMONG SCHOOL CHILDREN

In a recent editorial, the High River Times expressed the opinion that the children were returning to the schoolroom ready for another three month stretch, as under the present curriculum, every hour of the day is required to complete each year's course. There is not an unscheduled minute in which to pursue pleasant bypaths, to store up a reserve of mental effort for the demands of later life, or to permit each individual to relax in his own fashion.

A teacher remarked recently that people generally did not realize how many tired brains there were among children at school. Not many adults in daily work, trying on the sustained mental effort of the average twelve-year-old child, whose mind is constantly on the alert from nine to four.

There are many fathers and mothers who will agree wholeheartedly with the children not only in their general or history, know that there is not enough breathing space in the child's leisure hours. This, of course, applies to the conscientious boy or girl who insists on completing the full quota set by teacher.

The teachers argue that it is not the children who are bound, they will tell you, to an inexorable wheel. The department sets the course of study and if the teacher is conscientious, the course is covered. It would be more accurate to say it is cramped.

There is a feeling that too much is compressed into too little time. The three-year high school course already has received wide criticism. The universities are complaining that students are coming to them when too young; in many instances the pupil is through high school at an age below that set for admission to the university.

IMPORTANCE OF WESTERN ROUTE

Comment by Edmonton Bulletin: "Exporters tell us that there is at present more wheat available for shipment by the western route than by the eastern route. This, it is said, is the first time such a situation has existed. By 'available' wheat is meant wheat that can be shipped during the winter months to the overseas market under existing market conditions. The wheat being grown in the west, moving eastward must carry the charges of an all-rail haul to the Atlantic ports, which is apparently an impossible task at the present selling price. What would be the effect on business all over Canada if, the wheat trade were stalled for the winter? It is too plain to be a pleasant subject for contemplation. That there will be a continuous outflow of wheat and the steady inflow of wheat money is due to the opening of the western route and the establishment of freight rates which make export a commercial possibility even at present world prices."

A WORD FOR THE DOG
I've never known a dog to fake a display of love to make some little favor to attain. I've never seen a Prince or Spot That seemed to be what he was not.

But I have known a dog to fight With all his strength to shield his friend, And whether wrong or whether right To stick with him unto the end. And I have known a dog to lick The hand of him that men would kick.

And I have known a dog to bear Starvation's pangs from day to day With him who had been glad to share His bread and meat along the way. No dog, however mean or rude, Is guilty of ingratitude.

The dog is listed with the dumb No voice has he to speak his creed, His messages to humans come, By faithful conduct and by deed. He shows, as seldom mortals do, A high ideal of being true.

Last year nearly 24,000 barrels of oysters were taken in Canadian waters. The largest producer was New Brunswick, where the catch totalled more than 15,800 barrels. Prince Edward Island produced nearly 4,300 barrels, British Columbia about 3,200 and Nova Scotia a few barrels less than 2,000.

Eczema Itched and Burned So Could Not Sleep

For the past 52 years, MANUFACTURED ONLY BY THE T. MILBURN CO., Limited Toronto, Ont.

There is no remedy like B.B.B. for giving relief, no remedy that can do more for those who are driven to distraction with the terrible tortures of eczema.

Mrs. Cecil MacKay, Nashua, N.H., writes: "For a number of years I was troubled with eczema on my hands and they would itch and burn so at night I could not rest."

I tried different remedies and ointments, but of no avail. At last I was advised to take Burdock Blood Bitters, and after taking three bottles my hands were completely healed, and I had not had a sign of the eczema since."

Precious Indorses Grandpa

Anyone seeing Virginia Lennard glance furtively at the door of her room that early morning might think she was planning at least an elopement.

A second glance would reveal the fact that her age was past the eloping age. She was a charming woman, though, and if she hadn't been so harassed by a peck into a pocket book, a hasty puffing of an already delicately powdered nose, and gloves were snatched. Then Virginia Lennard started on lippy-toe for the door. Outside she paused to listen. Not a sound. She tripped downstairs—a girl's trip—and managed to open and shut the door noiselessly. She was free.

Meanwhile, Mr. and Mrs. George Lennard were coming slowly from what seemed a very anaesthesia of sleep. George threw his arms above his head and groaned. "Aren't you glad it's Sunday?"

"Marcy, at his side, yawned profoundly and stretched her pink toes before she replied.

"Wonder if Momm will have hot biscuits or coffee cake for breakfast?"

A piercing yell arose. The lazy ones flew out of bed to a crib in an alcove. "What can have happened? I don't believe Precious has been fed! Where's his formula?" A wild expression crossed the two peering faces. "Quick, George, call Momm. I guess she's in the kitchen."

No reply.

Two distracted pyjamaed figures flew downstairs. No; no convenient "Momm" to be seen anywhere. But a jar of formulated milk stood in the refrigerator and neatly written directions for feedings near by. Marcy burst into wild weeping.

"Momm has gone crazy," she cried.

George whistled. His eyes, still heavy with sleep, were utterly perplexed.

"No," he said at length, "Momm is not crazy. My belief is—she's just played hooky. You know, Marcy, we do work Momm pretty hard."

"I can understand her being fed up with us," admitted Marcy, "but when it comes to leaving Precious!"

"But, listen, Kiddie, Gosh! I hate to say it, but seems maybe it's we who neglect Precious. We go and go—look at yesterday afternoon. Momm just stayed home when it was 80 degrees in the shade and cooked the dinner and waited on Precious. You bet I'm right. Momm has struck."

That night a special delivery letter came. The two, exhausted with sketchy meals and a heat-rattled Precious, tore it open. It read:

"My Two Dears: Of course George has taken it sensibly (is not that a proper opening for a dreadful mother-in-law, Marcy?), but I'm afraid you and Precious may take my absence a bit hard. The truth is I don't want nervous prostration. I wouldn't have it for worlds. But, you see, I am human. And when Neta invited me last week to the country club, plenty of tennis, golf and several good companies coming, as well as some eastern operas—I simply couldn't refuse. I am just being lazy; having massage and beauty treatments and being dreadfully spoiled, of course, by Neta. I know you'll be all right. I told Dr. Lucy all about it before I went, and in an emergency you can have old Grace come in to cook. But I hope you won't. Housework is wonderful for the figure, and Marcy seemed to me to be slipping a bit about the hips. Forever, dears,

"Your Runaway Momm."

"She's frivolous, that's what Momm is," declared Marcy, looking at her contours in the pier glass. "But I guess I will do a little sweeping while she's gone."

"The worst of it is that Momm always has beaux when she goes away."

If she could find a nice man. But she never will. Not nice enough, I mean."

George's eyes were haggard. "You don't think—" he began.

Marcy laughed. "No, Momm won't marry again—at least I hope not," lamely.

A week went by. George was for fetching Momm home forcibly in the car. Marcy temperd.

Then one evening, during a heavy summer shower, a big and imposing car drove up. Momm jumped out. A rejuvenated Momm in a smart slicker. A large man followed her. George looked at Marcy in dismay.

"Come in, Jim," cried Momm gayly. "Children, I'm so dreadfully sorry for you, but I've married—I couldn't help it. If you will let him he will make a wonderful grandfather."

"You might leave something for me to say, I'm Jim Featherley, Neta's brother-in-law. I've known your Momm since she was 4. I take all the blame for this surprise, for I planned it. But we shall live across the street from you."

He indicated the one big house in the village.

George could not speak. Marcy began to cry. It looked quite truly like a miracle.

Then a gurgle was heard from the floor where Precious sat examining the toes of his right foot. Lifting his little arms to the stranger, he cooed. The atmosphere cleared.

"His" all right? Precious approved, I suppose?" queried Jim, lifting his grandson.

"You bet it is!" replied George, and Marcy hugged poor Momm, still a little scared by her desperate bid for freedom.

WHY FARMERS ARE IN DIFFICULTIES

Jan. 8.—A farmer in Chicago sold seven lambs to a Chicago packers house for the sum of $3.30. From this was deducted insurance, commission and inspection charges amounting to $2.25, leaving him the handsome sum of 75 cents. Interested in the case, the United States Department of Agriculture traced them, and reported that they were eventually sold to consumers for $33.70. And the witness who gave this evidence to the committee on agriculture also testified that on the way to Washington he paid $5c for two lamb chops in a Pullman diner. Now we give you three guesses why the farmers of the nation are in difficulties.—Monetary Times.

REDISTRIBUTION NOT IMMEDIATE SAYS BENNETT

When redistribution of federal ridings in this province will be effective and what changes, is a matter for the future, declared Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, Friday. The changes will be based on the recent census returns for the Dominion which show that Alberta had made a considerable gain in population.

"I would not venture to pass an opinion on the matter at present," said the prime minister. "There are many things which must be taken into consideration before new seats are allotted. For one thing, a careful study of census returns must be made as to density of population at certain points. Then parliamentary committees make exhaustive surveys and report from time to time to the house. The effect of the population change will not be known for a considerable time yet." The number of Alberta senators will not be affected, Mr. Bennett stated.

Poke Your Finger at a Lion

"What you need," said Dr. White, "is to poke your finger at a lion."

"That's all the prescription I can give you," the famous physician went on gruffly. "There's nothing wrong with you organically. But you're in a rut physically and mentally. It's up to you to snap out of it. As I said, poke your finger at a lion!"

When he had gone the doctor turned to his nurse. "That," he explained, "is the most eligible bachelor in town." He was born with a gold spoon in his mouth and he still eats with it. He's had everything he's wanted, and has been everywhere. He hires people to look after his income and others to look after his philanthropy. Result: he hasn't an interest in life. Bah!"

"Still, it must be nice to be rich," commented the nurse.

J. K., as he was known to his friends, dismissed his chauffeur waiting for him, and walked down the street. He was keenly disappointed, for he had gone to the doctor hoping that there was some physical basis for the lassitude that had beset him. So he was simply "in a rut." Mary Rand had put it more bluntly. She had said when he had asked her to marry him, "Marry you? You're so bored with life you don't care whether you marry or not. You're so bored you're getting to be a bore yourself. I shouldn't know what to do with you."

The words had stayed in his mind. He could not rid himself of them. He had been so sure of her. Ever since he was old enough to notice, women had angled for him and he had become bored. Then he had met Mary Rand, and she had seemed different — as every woman does to the man who loves her. She earned her living, which alone set her apart from most of the women he knew, and she had a personality that buoyed him up, and made him think of comradeship through the years. She had seemed to like him, and he had asked her to marry him in a rather take-it-or-leave-it tone. And she had turned on him, scornful, red hot, with the words that burned in his memory.

He had seen her only once since. Then she had been with Ted Wener, a brilliant man on the surface, quick at repartee and a gallant with women, but a rotter as men knew. He had the right.

As he passed at the corner for the green light, his glance, "wandering to a building opposite, was arrested by a bright yellow lion and he heard the doctor's voice, "Poke your finger at a lion." Both the lion and the words were so real that he gave a start and the car stopped. He looked around, grained sheepishly. The lion was safely on a poster announcing, "Circus Is Here! Now." Again the doctor's words sounded in his ears. A grim sense of humor possessed him. Well, why not? The doctor had not said the advice was literally of course, but why not take it literally?

He halted a taxi. At the circus grounds the afternoon performance was over but the ticket seller sold him an admission to the animal tent. Here a crowd was still standing around, fascinated as crowds always are by wild animals behind bars. The lion was moving about in his cage, restlessly, angrily, if one could judge by the hot gleam that came from his eyes. A keeper watched that none leaned too hard against the protecting rope. J. K. thought whimsically that the lion would not be much concerned at a single finger poked at him from the distance of the rope when just in front of him he heard the soft, oily voice of Ted Wener say, "Oh, but you must," and he heard Mary Rand's cold answer, "I don't want to speak to you again." And then came Ted Wener's sneering laugh, "But you'll telephone, my dear. They all do."

In a flash J. K.'s finger, which he had held extended in playful stimulation of the lion, curled with his other fingers into a fist, and the fist caught the unaware Ted Wener under the chin and set him reeling against the rope. Mary's half-breath, "You!" was the only sound for a startled second, and then there was a confusion of sounds. J. K. the other animals brayed, belowed, snorted, as with their language; trainers cracked their whips, women and children, and men screamed and stampeded for the exit which was luckily enough to let them out, and J. K. and Ted Wener found themselves being dragged in their wake by two husky guards, with Mary following close.

"Fight in a wild animal tent, will you," said a guard, knocking their heads together.

As if by magic a police wagon appeared and without ceremony the two were hustled in.

"I'm going, too," said Mary. J. K. tried to protest, but Mary silenced him. "I was never so thrilled in my life," said she. "Besides," practically, "you'll need me or—"

That same evening Dr. White received a telegram signed "J.K." It read: "Many thanks for the prescription. I poked my finger at a lion, I'm out on bail and I won the girl!"

"F'm," said Dr. White, "h'm."

THE NEW YEAR'S FOOD BUDGET

(By Barbara B. Brooks)

A housewife remarked the other day that she would gladly plan a budget if she ever had anything with which to start. Evidently she is one who immediately checks out of this month's salary for last month's bills. Her New Year resolution may well be to work out some sort of spending schedule and try to follow it.

The item for housing is fairly stationary so after it is decided on, it should take care of itself. The food allowance is more difficult to keep uniform. Food prices, choice, variety and even appetites are all uncertain quantities. A housewife can plan her Sunday roast with the thought that there will be enough left over for hash, but when she checks up on Monday, she may find only bones, and the hash automatically becomes vegetable soup. So it is with many other things. No one is able to draw up a food budget which can be followed exactly.

Authorities on food budgets have given us the following suggestions to insure adequate nutrition.

If there are children in the family, out of every dollar it is well to use for:

Bread, flour and cereals 15c to 20c
Milk and cheese 25c
Vegetables and fruits 25c
Fats and sweets 20c to 15c
Meat, fish and eggs 15c

If the family consists entirely of grown-ups, out of every dollar it is well to use for:

Bread, flour and cereals 15c to 20c
Milk and cheese 15c
Vegetables and fruits 30c to 25c
Fats and sweets 20c
Meats, fish and eggs 20c

Dividing the food dollar in this way will bring the greatest return in nutritive values for the amount of money used. The less money a family has to spend for food the more important it is that it should be spent approximately in this fashion.

ASK CLOSING OF BEER HALLS AND VENDOR STORES

The Unemployed Married Men's Association filed a request with the Calgary council Monday night that all beer halls and vendor stores be closed until the depression is ended. FLOCKS UPON THE THOUSAND HILLS

J. S. Jones has arranged for the Bank of Montreal magazine, an article on sheep raising in Alberta. It includes figures on the possibilities of sheep ranching, and also an entertaining description of the work involved in the successful raising of these domestic animals. He says:

"Canada's sheep have increased about 127,000 head per annum in the last five years, but this is not fast enough in view of the fact that $54,426,616 worth of wool and wool products were imported in 1929, with exports of $2,854,693.

"Raising sheep on ranches is quite different from raising them on farms. A good range ewe can be bought for $8 to $30. The June clip should bring 60 to 90 cents, her lamb should fetch $4.00 in the autumn. A gross income of $4.50, with cost of upkeep $3.00 a year, so that the net income should be $1.50 or 20 per cent. These are fair profits but only won with eternal vigilance.

"A rancher with 10,000 head of ewes, would have 40,000 acres of leased range land on a watercourse. The sheep would be in six main groups. The ram band of 250 head, worth $10,000 would be many miles from the ranch, being fed and specially cared for till the last week in November. The ewes would be in five bands of about 2000 head, each band in a unit in charge of a herder who lives in a "sheep wagon."

Each night the herder brings his sheep back near the wagon and he must be alert for any weather changes. In times of bad storms two men and dogs are needed to keep the band on their feet, in close formation and moving with circular motion to keep the snow trodden down as it falls. This is called "keeping them on top."

"The sheep graze all winter. Bucking, or pawing the snow to get to the grass. Snow ploughs are used to break up crusted snow. Reserve feed at strategic points is used only in emergency.

"There are six periods when sheep raising requires unusual attention: The lambing period from middle of April to May; the docking, the shearing in June, the dipping a week later. Then comes the early autumn with weaning, marketing and re-sorting of flocks. Then the winter again, which is always a battle.

"There is constant loss from accidents, prairie fires, wolves, coyotes and diseases, but this should not exceed 5 per cent on a good ranch. "It is on lambing time that much of the year's profit depends. An income of 90 to 95 per cent is good; 75 to 80 per cent is fair; less than 75 per cent is poor. On farms the increase is often 120 per cent as many twins are born and are raised; farm ewes give ten pounds more wool per head and their usefulness extends up to ten years. But a range ewe has not the same personal care nor food and her usefulness is pretty well over at five years."

PROSPERITY HASTENED IF SUSPICIONS WERE BURIED

London, Ont., Dec. 31.—Confidence in our ability to break through the cycle of deflation and put business on the upgrade and confidence in each other in our immediate business dealings were urged today by W. K. Kellogg, founder and president of the Kellogg Company, leading cereal manufacturers.

"This past year closes the Kellogg Company's twenty-fifth anniversary with an unbroken record of progress, regardless of the several cycles of deflation through which the country has passed," said Mr. Kellogg. "Although we have adapted our business to the changing conditions, we are adhering steadily to the basic policies that have governed our actions in times of both prosperity and depression. This fact, I believe, is largely responsible for the satisfactory condition in which we find our business today."

"The return to prosperity undoubtedly would be greatly hastened if suspicions of the other fellow could be buried and confidence fully restored between manufacturers, the trade and consumers alike."

WHEAT QUOTA APPROVED

BY OLD COUNTRY MILLERS

London, Jan. 12.—The Government's wheat quota scheme granting British farmers a guaranteed share of the British wheat market at a fixed price was approved at a conference between the ministry of agriculture and representatives of the millers, corn merchants and farmers today.

Details of the scheme will be settled by a committee working with the ministry, and the project will be placed in legislative form. It is the promise to giving Dominion wheat growers their own quota in the British market.

Following negotiations extending for some weeks, in the course of which the government made several alterations in its original proposal, representatives of the millers, corn merchants, and farmers conferred with Sir John Gilmour, minister of agriculture, today.

This is the first step toward a quota for the Dominion's wheat farmers in a project which it is believed will result in dividing the British wheat requirements somewhat as follows: 15 per cent for domestic farmers, 55 per cent or more for Dominion farmers, and the remainder for open competition between the Dominions and foreign countries.

GOOD SHOOTING

He had joined the golf club and on his first hole made it in one. At the second he came within a hair of the second hole and he made the second in one. Turning around, white and trembling, he said: "Goeh! I thought I'd missed that time."

A Scotsman and an Englishman were shooting together, and as the Englishman was a very poor shot the Scot decided to get a little spare cash at his expense. "I'll bet you a couple of pounds," he said, "that you cannot shoot at anything over 200 yards and kill it."

"Right!" answered the other. "I'll take you." Just then a big crow passed overhead, and, taking careful aim, the Englishman fired. The bird fell dead at his feet, and he cried joyfully. The Scot was crestfallen. "But, mon," he began, "you dinna win the bet. A fa' o' that distance would kill anything."

THE FARMER'S HOLIDAY

Wetaskiwin representatives at the United Farmers of Alberta convention in Edmonton will introduce a resolution proposing a half holiday a week for farmers. The idea is so startling that one imagines it must have evolved in the brain of some city man.

The trouble with holidays on the farm is that animals won't go on a six day week or eight-hour shift. The cow manufactures milk all the time except during her dry period, and unless it is drawn off regularly, she bawls. No Alberta legislation is going to keep a cow from bawling, and no college professor of agriculture has yet devised a means of milking a cow in advance of time.

It would be as difficult a job as collecting eggs before they are laid. When I worked on the farm, holidays came around at rare intervals. We celebrated them mainly by putting on clean overalls and attending to the odd chores that had accumulated during the past few months.

It is doubtful if there could be found enough odd chores on the average farm to keep the farmer busy half a day every week and that would be a sad state of affairs indeed. A farmer who has nothing to do is the most miserable creature imaginable. He likes work. Otherwise he would not be a farmer.

As a concession to the occasion, the farmer may get up half an hour later than usual, but he makes up for this by having a hurried breakfast. Then he attends to the feeding and milking of the animals, the cleaning of the barns, and the other necessary chores. After that begins his holiday.

How does he spend it? He takes down the stoves, he saws cordwood, and does a bit of splitting. He mends broken harness. He greases the heavy wagon. He straightens the fork tines, puts a new blade in the hoe, and does a bit of amateur blacksmithing. He clips the old mare. He props up a sagging fence, and hunts around for the wire pierce he lost last summer. He cleans up the roothouse. He trains the pup to drive cattle. He puts a new board down by the well. He takes stock of the feed on hand, and puts a porker in a private sty for fattening.

He has a thoroughly enjoyable time. Once half holidays are made a legal institution, however, it will not be so pleasant. Work will be forbidden. There will be heavy penalties for infringements. There may even be walking delegates snooping around to see that the provisions of the act are strictly observed.

It is sincerely to be hoped that there will be few loopholes in the Farmers' Half Holiday Act. Emergencies arise suddenly, and it is not always convenient to wait until the next session of the Legislature at Edmonton before taking action.

If the best cow breaks into a field of green oats, on the holiday, would her owner be expected to delay until after the last stroke of midnight before shooting her out? Green oats, in glutinous quantities, do no good whatever to cows in milk.

If the irrigation dam breaks, is the leak to be stopped today or tomorrow?

If a bush fire is creeping along, should it be watched or fought on the holiday?

Suppose a stranger drops in and offers to buy a horse for more than its worth, will the farmer dare take advantage of the golden opportunity or will he ask the prospect to come again on a more legal occasion?

Assuming that the district banker calls in a jovial mood and offers to renew the mortgage for three years, contrary to instructions from head office, is such financial transaction to be considered as work and pushed ruthlessly aside, or as a godsend and gladly embraced?

If the farmer absent-mindedly pulls out a sow thistle, will he be expected to plant it again so that it may be legally eradicated on the morrow?

If—no, there's no "if" about this one—when there is an impending emergency, case in the dairy barn, by what process of hocus-pocus is the distracted farmer to convince the cow that she should wait a few hours longer before dropping her calf? This sort of thing has never been subjected to "hocus-pocus" and "therefore" be it resolved, and half holiday or no half holiday, what must be must be.

Whatever else the authorities insist upon, it is hoped there will be a compassionate allowance for law-breakers during seed time and harvest. Few farmers will be stupid enough to prefer a legal wet holiday to an illegal dry stack of hay—Vancouver Province.

LAND REVERTS TO PROVINCE

Edmonton, Jan. 11.—More than 7,000 parcels of land in improvements districts throughout the province have been declared by order-in-council to be provincial or Crown lands and are being turned over to the lands and mines department for such disposal as may be found advisable. The land from more fractions of acres to quarter-sections, the majority being around 160 acres. All parts of Alberta are represented in the list.

The lands in question have been taken under tax recovery proceedings that have been pending for sometime past, and title has now been acquired because of default of taxes, by the province. If and when they are sold as Crown lands, subject to tax arrears, the improvement districts in which they are located will be paid the taxes owing.

Some of the lands, it is probable, will be thrown open for homesteading, but the department of lands and mines has not yet dealt with the matter.

Oxford and Cambridge Skiers Hold First Meeting on British Soil

History was written in Canadian and Empire ski annals at St. Marguerite, Que., over the end of 1931 and the beginning of 1932, when the ski teams of the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge held their Inter-Varsity meet on British soil for the first time. Hitherto the famous British Universities have always settled their winter sports differences in Switzerland, the recent visit to Canada having been made in the light of the "Buy British" campaign, and for the encouragement of University Sports between different parts of the Empire. They also met Canadian college teams, were entertained at Ottawa by His Excellency the Governor-General, and made the acquaintance of a number of Canadian Ski Clubs. The pictures show (Dark Swastons) the Oxford Team; (Light Swastons) Cambridge, who won the British Inter-Varsity meet; and (in group) taken immediately after the Oxford-Cambridge cross country race, Left to Right: Alexander Keller, President of the Ski Club of Great Britain and Honorary Manager of the teams, timekeeper; W. (Bill) Thompson, Montreal, former Canadian Olympic Skier, starter; F. J.

Walter, (Oxford) individual winner; W. D. Dunn, Cambridge, second; and H. Spence former British cross country ski champion and member of the technical committee of the Ski Club of Great Britain, timekeeper. Just—a fine jump by three of the British undergraduates. All were enthusiastic about their visit to Canada and the beautiful mountain resort on the Laurentian line of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The party travelled from England in the Canadian Pacific liner "Montcalm" and returned on the "Duchess of York."

Here and There

In 1930 the Canadian Pacific Railway paid out in taxes in Canada $2,477,000 and for the year 1931 its taxes will run to over $7,200,000. This brings the company's total tax payments in Canada from its incorporation to date to more than $121,000,000.

Jim London, world heavyweight wrestling champion, on a recent trip into the New Brunswick woods, bagged a black bear, weighing 800 lbs. The animal, wounded by two shots, was killed by London who dropped his rifle and resorted to a knife with which he killed the bear.

Nova Scotia is coming into its own as a holiday province. In 1931 more than a quarter of a million tourists visited the province, the largest number of summer visitors in its history, according to records by Hon. P. C. Black, provincial Minister of Highways.

To have joined the Canadian Pacific Railway and other its organization in 1881 and in the last seven years to have examined more men for promotion to employ than any other company, is the outstanding record of Alton James, of Toronto, who has just retired from the position of Rule Examiner for the Motive Power department at Montreal.

The Brockville Recorder in a recent editorial urges all Canadians who are figuring on holidaying outside the Dominion this winter to consider the advantages of British Columbia where the Canadian dollar stands at par and where the climate is the equal of any to be found in the United States. Great Britain, the editorial adds, has set the example for Britishers which Canadians should be patriotic enough to follow.

The high reputation of Canada for the Pacific settlement of disputes with foreign powers is an example that exerts considerable influence in the councils of the League of Nations and indicates that the Dominion should play an important part in the coming disarmament conference at London, says Colonel David Carnegie, C. B. E., noted lecturer on the promotion of peace, who recently sailed for Great Britain aboard the Duchess of Richmond.

Beginning their first Canadian tour, the ski teams of the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, arriving at Halifax by Canadian Pacific steamship Montcalm, went on via Montreal to Lucerne in Switzerland from where they will continue their tour. The teams were welcomed at the Windsor station, Montreal by Lord Duncannon, son of the Governor-General, himself an undergraduate of Cambridge University.

Montreal, Windsor station First Aid Police team are the 1931 Canadian Pacific All-Canada champions having defeated the western champions of Nelson, B.C., by 13 1/2 points in the final round. The Police team have won every First Aid competition in Canada possible for a police team to win, including the Quebec Provincial Championship, the Spaulding Shield, representing the championship of Eastern Canada and the Sherwood Shield emblematic of the police championship of Canada.

EXPERT OPINION
School Teacher: "And now that we have finished discussing the lion and the tiger, who can tell me something about the lynx?"
Teacher: "Well, Johnny, can you describe the lynx?"
Johnny: "No, sir."
Teacher: "Then why did you raise your hand?"
Johnny: "I thought Reggie Rowbottom could tell."

EXPLAINED
The teacher had been lecturing his pupils on famous proverbs.
"Now, take this one," he said. "Out of sight, out of mind. Can any boy tell me what that proverb means?"
"Yes, sir," answered the brightest boy in the class. "Invisible and insane."
THE WORST POP
Wallace, a boy, asked his mother to read to him the question.
Horace: "No; afraid to question the pop."

SPORT

WETASKIWIN LOSE FAST GAME TO CAMROSE FLIERS

By playing good clean hockey, coupled with effective combination, the Camrose Fliers hockey team had a slight advantage over the Wetaskiwinites on the local ice Friday night. The game was fast throughout, both teams being determined to win. Warty Somers, who had charge of the game, had little difficulty in keeping control, and the penalties were few. Wetaskiwin's counters were made by Bob Watson getting two, one on a pass from Farewell and the other unassisted, while Jim Watson, on a solo rush found the net for Wetaskiwin's third and final counter. For the Camroseans Hanson scored three and Robinson one. The final score was Camrose 4, Wetaskiwin 3. The line-up was:

GOOD GOAL KEEPING WINS GAME FOR THORSBY

Phenomenal playing on the part of the visiting goal tender prevented the Wetaskiwin hockey team from chalking up another victory Monday night, when an exhibition game was played here with Thorsby. Not only was the goal keeper impregnable, but the visitors also had a better combination and team play than the locals. Four periods were played, the first and third being scoreless. In the second period, Robinson, a tower of strength for Thorsby, found the net three times, once unassisted and the other two on passes from J. Willis and Ruzicka. Wetaskiwin got its only counter nine minutes after play commenced in the final period, when in a mix-up in front of the Thorsby goal, B. Watson put one across which beat the goalie. Final score was, Thorsby 3, Wetaskiwin 1. Warty Somers, the referee, had the game well in hand, and no penalties were handed out. Play was fast considering the inclement weather. The line-up was:

Thorsby: Phillips; Dr. Henken, Derrick; Ross, Ruzicka, Willis, Hoosler, Umphreys, Moellner.
Wetaskiwin: Gouchie; J. Watson, Merner; A. Abousafy, Greiner, Aicher, Farewell, R. Watson.

THE GOLD STANDARD

Whether it's better to be on or off the gold standard seems to be the question agitating the leaders in most nations these days. There have been several rumors of Canada's intention to leave the gold standard but they have been promptly denied. Since this is a gold producing country and incidentally one that is benefiting largely by the present situation with respect to gold there is very good reason for staying on the gold standard. The newest development, though, is a demand in the United States for that country to follow the lead of several other nations and abandon gold as the standard of exchange. If that were done then the Canadian position would be greatly changed as Canada is benefitting just now by the fact that the U. S. is on a gold standard and that Canadian holders are selling their gold at the gold market. Should that situation be changed then it would be a question what Canada might do or have to do to meet the situation. There is one school of thought that definitely sees a breakdown in the world's trading so far as gold is concerned, and a book recently published in Toronto, "A World on Gold Rations," tells the story rather plainly and advocates a medium of exchange based more or less on the wealth of the country selling. This writer says: "The bridge of the gold standard is cracking under its own weight. Before its trusses fall and humanity is engulfed, we must create a new monetary standard, a bridge of social credit wide enough to bear the freight of commerce, strong enough to command the confidence of the world's producers. We have long attempted to create money by legislation, and are just beginning to discover that its origin is production. A true currency should conform to the character of the wealth of which it is the issue. It should be as plentiful as the goods and service offered for exchange." Of course, Canada being a gold producing nation comes under the idea with the gold standard as a basis of exchange.

The argument for a change as indicated by the success which has attended the move in England, Canada is at present enjoying, so far as the United States is concerned, the same benefits that Great Britain enjoys due to the change from the gold standard, that is the depreciated dollar tends to keep the money at home and thus help home industries. That depends, of course, on the continuance of the situation across the line and, generally speaking, it looks as if it is good business for Canada to profit as she may and keep a weather eye on Uncle Sam. If he changes then a change might be considered but until then there is little to recommend it.

ALBERTA TO PAY 18 PER CENT ON TWO MILLION

Edmonton, Jan. 12.—Obligations that the province of Alberta will have in the New York money market Friday, when a debenture issue for $3,000,000 will mature, will be safely taken care of, it is announced by Premier Brownlee. The premier said that satisfactory arrangements have been completed by which an extension has been made on $1,000,000, and the balance will be taken up.

The exchange discount on $2,000,000 will cost Alberta $300,000. Particulars as to how the latter part of the transaction has been arranged are not being given out at present, but the premier says that a statement will not doubt be made to the legislature when it meets.

Exchange on the $2,000,000 that will be taken up, cannot be avoided, and the deal is being put through at a rate of 18 per cent.

[This is an advertisement addressed to retailers in a "small way" of business]

If You Really Want a Small Business Say Nothing About It!

RETAILERS who DON'T WANT a bigger business should say nothing about it, for if they began talking about it in the form of advertisements they would get new customers whose requirements would just distribute them—would compel them to buy more, deliver more, work more.

There's a story told about a retailer who certainly didn't want a big business. He was playing checkers with a crony in some place of hiding in the rear portion of his store. A customer entered. The crony said "There's Mrs. Black." "Hush," said the retailer, "If we don't make a noise, perhaps she'll go away."

The way to a bigger business is as plain as the nose on one's face—customer multiplication. A retailer with an urge toward bigger things SHOULD GIVE HIS MAIN THOUGHT AND EFFORT to the matter of customer multiplication.

SOME RETAILERS CAN NEVER HOPE TO HAVE A BIG BUSINESS EVEN IF THEY WANTED ONE—THEY LACK THE ABILITY, THE ENERGY, THE AMBITION, THE UNDERSTANDING needed to make a big business. They are content with a small business, and would be really unhappy if their business was growing rapidly as a consequence of circumstances outside their control. THEY WOULD FEEL LIKE A MAN IN A WAGON WHOSE HORSES WERE RUNNING AWAY WITH IT!

Some retailers, however, have an urge to make their business larger. They dream of the time when they will have one big store or a flock of "chain" stores. They want a much bigger income than their present one. Perhaps they dream of a time when they WON'T HAVE TO WORK, WHEN THEY WILL HAVE MUCH

LEISURE TO BE SPENT PITCHING HORSESHOES, OR IN BOWLING, OR IN TRAVELLING, OR WITH BOOKS, OR IN A COUNTRY HOME.

CUSTOMER ATTRACTION can be accomplished variously, but there is one essential means—press advertising. ADVERTISEMENTS GO WHERE PERSONAL SALESMEN AND EVEN LETTERS CAN'T HOPE TO GO, and they have a profound influence on readers of them — they soften resistance, dissolve apathy, create confidence and goodwill, and direct the steps of buyers. And they are cheap! And buyers—not sellers—pay for them, and are glad to pay for them! BUYERS ALWAYS GO, IN LARGEST NUMBERS, AND OF THEIR OWN FREE WILL, TO THOSE STORES WHICH SPEND A LOT OF MONEY ON ADVERTISING.

Why should any ambitious retailer hesitate to contract for advertising which his customers will pay for gladly?

Quick Relief from pain

A lot of things can cause a headache or other pain, but there is one thing that will always give you relief. Just take a tablet or two of Aspirin. Your suffering ceases. Relief comes instantly, regardless of what may have been making your head throb with pain.

Aspirin is harmless—cannot depress the heart. So there's no use waiting for a headache to "wear off." It is useless to endure pain of any kind when you can get Aspirin. It is a blessing to women who suffer regular systemic pain; to men who must work on, in spite of eye-strain, fatigue or neuralgia.

Learn its quick relief for colds; for neuritis, rheumatism, lumbago. Be sure to get Genuine Aspirin. All druggists keep Aspirin Tablets.

W.C.T.U.

More than 1,500,000 British people have now signed the International Declaration in support of World Disarmament. This Declaration is being widely signed in forty countries and all the signatures will be presented to the Disarmament Conference in Geneva in February.

The W.C.T.U. and the Ministerial Association of Sydney have forwarded to the government of Nova Scotia a petition asking that the government liquor stores in Sydney be closed during the period of financial depression.

The W.C.T.U. of Edmonton, recently passed a resolution to press for closing of beer rooms on the plea that Saskatchewan with a population of nearly 200,000 more than Alberta received $700,000 from the liquor business last year, while Alberta received less than $2,000,000. Saskatchewan has no beer parlors and Alberta has the beer parlors and the cost of beer is not included in the $2,000,000. Could there be a more convincing proof that beer creates and fosters a thirst for hard liquor? The profits from beer would easily bring Alberta an additional $1,000,000. And this revenue business cannot be run without boys and girls. Whose boys and girls? This is the question to take home.

"Building boys is better than mending men."

INVENTORY OF 1931

A neighboring editor takes an inventory of the salient episodes of his experience in 1931. He jots down the following items: Been broke 361 times; praised the public 91 times; praised individuals $769 times; have been praised by the public 2 times; told lies 720 times; shaded the truth 367 times; used unwarranted adjectives 4,355 times; missed prayer meeting 52 times; reported other meetings 394 times; escaped serious trouble 52 times; have been informally roasted 431 times; roasted others 52 times; washed office towel 3 times; mistaken for preacher 11 times; mistaken for capitalist 0 times; got licked 4 times; licked others 1 time; cash at beginning of 1931, $1.47; cash at end of 1931, 15 cents.

MILLET JUNIORS WIN AT PONOKA

Ponoka, Jan. 11.—Millet juniors defeated Ponoka Midgits 3-2 in an exhibition hockey game played on the Ponoka rink Saturday night. Play was fast from the start with fast skating and hard back-checking on the part of both teams. Matt opened the scoring in the first period when Duchuk registered on a solo rush. Nelson evened the score shortly afterwards, also on a solo rush.

In the second period H. Olinsky gave Millet the lead again, but not for long, as G. Plant again equalized for Ponoka.

The final stanza was the fastest of the three with both teams working for lead. Millet got this when S. Elder banged the disc past Goale Knight. Ponoka failed to even the count. The Millet boys playing a purely defensive game.

G. Plant was the outstanding player of the evening, making raid after raid on the Millet goal but the breaks were against him and he failed to score.

MILLET LADIES' AID

A large number of members and visitors spent a very enjoyable afternoon at the home of Mrs. T. K. Rone when the Ladies' Aid held their January meeting. Mrs. S. C. Moen and Mrs. (Rev.) G. Smith conducted the missionary program. Plans were discussed for a Valentine social soon. Officers were elected for President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer, as follows: Mesdames Higginson, Gibling, Moen and "Alkins" respectively, with Mrs. Easterbrook as missionary leader.

After a delicious lunch Mrs. (Rev.) Smith offered her home for the next meeting. All departed in buggies (gas) and sleighs to the lilting refrain of "Jingle Bells."

PLANNING FOR 1932

Failure records for 1931 show that a high percentage of casualties in the manufacturing and distributing group resulted primarily from a lack of directed effort and a proneness to sit back and wait for business to improve instead of doing something about it.—Bradstreet

Do something, tell your customers what you have, and tell them in an interesting and convincing way and keep on telling them. The local newspaper is absolutely the best medium for putting your message over.—Innisfail Province.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 7.—Julius Rosenwald, numbered among the greatest philanthropists of all time, died Wednesday. He would have been 70 years old next August.

The fortune, founded on the growth of Sears, Roebuck & Co., of which he was chairman at his death, Mr. Rosenwald pitted against racial and religious intolerance, ignorance and poverty, and his benefactions to humanity totalled more than $40,000,000.

Alberta's new 1932 auto license plates, with black figures on a white background, will be the only "black-on-white" license on the continent, with the exception of Alabama plates, according to the lists of official license plate colors for North America.

Minister (with a sigh): "Well, there are no divorces in heaven."

Cynical friend: "No, you can't get a divorce without a lawyer."

A Calgary girl was married on Christmas Day. After the ceremony, the officiating priest said: "I wish you a long and happy married life." The bride, with Christmas greetings still ringing in her head, answered brightly: "And the same to you, Father." Only the horrified looks of the guests told her that wasn't the right answer.

HILLSIDE

(Intended for last week)
Mr. Kenneth Marr, who has spent the past year with his uncle, Mr. L. W. Marr, left for his home in Prince Rupert, B.C.

The dance put on in the school house on Dec. 27th, under the auspices of the sport ground committee, drew a large crowd in spite of the snow storm and cold. The music was furnished by Messrs. Dare, Dickinson and Jas. Hoskins.

The U.F.W.A. card party held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Young last Wednesday evening was well attended, there being eight tables. The ladies' prize was won by Mrs. A. Dowdell, while Ivan Swartz won the gents. Mrs. Harvey and Chas. Robinson carried off the consolation prizes.

The debate between Verduin and Hillside, which was to have been held at Hillside on January 12th, has been postponed until after the U.F.A. convention.

SCHOOL GRANTS MAY BE REDUCED BY GOVERNMENT

Edmonton, Jan. 9.—Hon. Perren Baker, minister of education, stated when his attention was drawn to the Regina dispatch, that the problem of making economies was discussed at the inter-provincial conference here. As school grants were a material item of expenditure, these naturally came up for consideration.

No decision was made to reduce the school year on which the grants are based, said Mr. Baker. While the matter was discussed, there was no decision reached. He said this did not involve any shortening of the period for which the schools are kept open.

Should the province decide to reduce its school grant materially, Edmonton and other large Alberta centres would be affected seriously, it is felt by civic officials.

The province now makes a grant of $250 per day or high school rooms in cities, on the basis of 200 days or a maximum of $500; a grant of 50 cents per room per day for the public schools, and in high schools the grant is $1.50 per day for rooms of city students and $2.50 per room per day for rooms of non-residents.

In places where there are three-roomed or four-roomed high schools such as Alberta towns, the province makes a grant of $4 per room per day. The grant to rural and village schools is 30 cents per room per day.

ARTERIOSCLEROSIS

With the approach of old age changes in the arteries are to be expected on account of their constant use over a period of years. The change which we know as arteriosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries, means that the walls of the arteries have become thick and inflexible.

"When this change occurs in middle life, we have what may be called premature old age, for it has been said with truth that a man is as old as his arteries. The change in the arteries is generally associated with changes in other parts which may be either the cause or the result of the altered condition of the arteries.

Hardening of the arteries follows poisoning of the body. Alcohol and lead are systemic poisons. Another form of poisoning is by the toxins given off by germs which are present in the body. The toxins may come from a focus of infection, such as diseased teeth, or they may be the toxins given off by the germs of syphilis or some acute infection.

Overwork of some part of the body leads to an early wearing out of the body machine, and this may mean early hardening of the arteries. Perhaps the most usual way in which the body is made to overwork is through overeating. Another cause is living at high pressure under mental strain.

It is evident that if we wish to keep our arteries young, which means elastic, it is necessary for us to live a life of moderation. Discretion in eating and drinking, attention to the simple rules of healthy living have their reward in more years of health, more years in which to enjoy life, to work and to play. This is better than trying to crowd a whole lifetime into a few years, then to spend the remainder of life handicapped by a prematurely worn-out body.

Those individuals in whom the condition has developed must face the situation; they must adjust their lives to meet new conditions. If they do so, they can enjoy a life of restricted activity.

Life for such individuals must be quiet, well-regulated and without indulgence to excess in food or drink. Excesses of any kind, whether physical exertion, mental worry, anger or excitement, must be avoided.

The prevention of hardening of the arteries lies in a hygienic life, the

ACID STOMACH

EXCESS acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. Harmless, and tasteless, and yet its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, once you learn how quickly this method acts. Be sure to get the genuine.

The ideal dentifrice for clean teeth and healthy gums is Phillips' Dental Magnesia, a superior toothpaste that safeguards against acid-mouth. (Made in Canada.)

avoidance of excesses, reasonable attention to diet, and the early treatment of any infectious condition. Abuse of the body results in harm. The body cannot suffer abuse today and have it made up for by extra care tomorrow. Abuse leaves permanent scars which lead to a early wearing out, or premature old age.

Here's a Little Story for Retailers

A YOUNG tailor complained bitterly about his poor business. "I make just as good clothes as 's do," he said, "and I sell them for less, yet 's get most of the business of this district."

This young tailor felt that men ought to find all about him—that they should search him out. He didn't see that it was his job to make known to all men the fact that he made good clothes and sold them at attractive prices. 's, on the other hand, advertised their business, and, of course, men went to them for their clothes.

It's the same all the world over—buyers go where they are invited to go. They buy, in largest numbers, from those who give them information about their business, service, goods, prices. This is exactly as it should be.

Why shouldn't the most aggressive seller get most business?

The world likes to buy from keen sellers—from retailers who pay them the compliment of telling them about what they have to sell and about their desire for their custom.

Dumb retailers may be fine men, may give good values, may be first-class store keepers, but the buying public prefers to go where advertisements in their newspapers direct them to go.

The wise retailer runs his business in line with what buyers want, because it is profitable to do so.

It costs a retailer far more NOT to advertise than to advertise.
